ST. Elizabeth Ann Seton Council 11187

Volume 10, Issue 7

July 5, 2003

Dear Brother Knights

I would like to take this opportunity to thank our Past Grand Knight Dick Petersen for his commitment and leadership to our council this past year. Under his direction, our Council has again been recognized for the tremendous work that we've accomplished this past fraternal year. I also want to thank all of you for the opportunity to serve as your Grand Knight this coming year.

This coming year, we'll have many opportunities for each one of us to actively participate in all kinds of projects. The Council depends on the involvement of each of you if we expect to continue our tradition of excellence. We need you to step up and volunteer your time and talents. If you have an interest in chairing, co-chairing or working on an event - or if you have an idea for a new event - let any of the officers know.

I'm looking forward to working with the officers, Directors and all of you, in this our tenth year as a Council. Let's build on our momentum and make it a fantastic year. Thanks again for your vote of confidence.

Fraternally yours,

Neil Ferguson
Grand Knight

Chancellors' Corner

Brother Knights,

I write to you in this issue as your newly elected Chancellor. I thank you for your vote of confidence during the recent election. However, I am not at all sure that I can live up to the standards set by my predecessor, Mike Croyle. I have enjoyed Mike's articles; they were witty, insightful and thought provoking. A very tough act to follow, but I will attempt to give you something to ponder each month in my writings (even if it is only to wonder how you could have elected such a lame Chancellor).

July is, of course, the month in which we celebrate our Nation's independence; traditionally a time of patriotic celebration and a heightened sense of national unity. I thought it would be natural to discuss patriotism in this issue; after all, patriotism is one of the basic precepts of the Knights of Columbus. Should be an easy topic for my first attempt, right?

Wrong! As I sat down to organize my thoughts on this topic, I discovered that I really didn't have a clear understanding of my own thoughts and feelings regarding patriotism. What is it? How is it demonstrated? How does it affect our lives? Does patriotism mean something different in this post-9/11 era than it did previously? Should it? After contemplating these and related questions, I seriously considered ending this article here, simply saying it is for each of us individually to answer these questions and govern our behavior accordingly, say God Bless, and call it a day. However, because I am either a glutton for pain, or not very bright, I will go ahead and give you my thoughts on the matter.

Webster's Dictionary defines patriotism as follows: "Love and loyal or zealous support of one's own country." Sounds good to me. "My country right or wrong." Simple, right? However, because I'm basically a nerd and a bookworm, I know that other great thinkers have had different takes on the subject. For instance, Thomas Jefferson once said: "To compel a man to subsidize with his taxes the propagation of ideas which he disbelieves and abhors is sinful and tyrannical." Clarence Darrow once said "True patriotism hates injustice in its own land more than anywhere else." Edward R. Murrow is quoted as saying "We must not confuse dissent with disloyalty. When the loyal opposition dies, I think the soul of America dies with it." Mark Twain (one of my personal favorites, as you will come to know) said "The government is merely a servant; merely a temporary servant. It cannot be its prerogative to determine what is right and what is wrong and decide who is a patriot and who isn't. Its function is to obey orders, not originate them." Hmm. Seems there is a bit more to this patriotism thing than I thought. On one hand, it seems right and proper to adopt a "love it or leave it" attitude, especially in these turbulent times of war and terrorism. On the other hand, it appears that it is equally right to observe the actions of our government and our leaders with a critical eye. Which philosophy is correct? I believe it is a bit of both.

If you watch television for any amount of time on the weekends, your bound to come across a movie called "The American President." Not necessarily a classic, but it gets a heck of a lot of airplay. In this film, the character of the U.S. President makes a speech in which he says "America isn't easy." I think this line pretty clearly states the problem of modern patriotism. Just as it is not easy at all times to be a Christian and a good Catholic, it is increasingly difficult to be a patriotic American. We should zealously protect our civil liberties as guaranteed by the Constitution from government curtailment, but we also need to take steps to insure we are safe to travel about our country and conduct our daily lives. We should help eradicate injustice and tyranny where it exists, but we should not go to war for personal gain. We can peacefully oppose our government committing our armed forces, but once committed, we should offer our servicemen and women our unwavering support and prayers for their safe return. We can absolutely believe that the burning of our flag is wrong, but we should defend to the death the rights of free speech and assembly which our forefathers have died to protect. Indeed, being America, the greatest society that ever existed, is not easy or simple. It is incredibly complex. It seems that we have a duty to both support and be critical of our government and leaders, and that patriots are found in the camps of both the supporters and the critics.

How, then do we define patriotism and determine whom the true patriots are today? I go back to what I said earlier in my ramblings; each of us must decide for ourselves. As Mark Twain said, "Each man must for himself alone decide what is right and what is wrong, which course is patriotic and which isn't. You cannot shirk this and be a man. To decide against your conviction is to be an unqualified and inexcusable traitor, both to yourself and to your country; let me label you as they may." (I bold you he was a favorite!) We must look within ourselves and seek God's guidance to determine what is patriotic and what isn't. Feel free, however, to disagree with me. After all it's your right as a patriotic American.

Greg Lowe
Chancellor

The Columbus Diocese took 7 of the top ten places in the state this year.

We have to send out a special thanks to the man behind the scenes, Bob Ketchum is responsible for all our paper work being submitted, with his gentle prodding we turned in all the require paperwork in a timely manner, with out his diligence none of this would have been possible.
